The Center for Latino Arts and Culture's (CLAC) mission is to research, document, interpret and promote Latino/a, Hispanic, Caribbean, and Latin American arts and culture. Through its programming and publications, CLAC seeks to advance the appreciation and understanding of Latino/a artistic production, scholarship, and cultural traditions.

CLAC presents arts and humanities programs university wide for faculty, students, staff, and the broader community beyond the University. Programs are designed to advance academic excellence, support Latino/a artists, further documentation of Latino/a scholarship and foster cross-cultural affiliations. CLAC accomplishes this through research, publications and presentation of artists' productions and humanities scholarship.

CLAC programs consist of:

- visual art exhibitions
- music and theater productions
- scholarly lectures, conferences
- literary symposia
- community education
- cultural events

Through its programming and publications, CLAC emphasizes an interdisciplinary approach to the exploration of arts and culture.
