

American Studies

American Studies is an interdisciplinary major that allows students to explore different aspects of the American experience. We approach the American experience broadly, exploring the culture, history, politics, literature, and arts of the peoples of the United States.

Our faculty is dedicated to helping students learn to write well, to speak articulately, and to think analytically and creatively. These are skills necessary for success in any field. We are a small department, and we give students a great deal of individual attention. We try to maintain a small-college atmosphere within our enormous state university. We hope that students in American Studies are people, not numbers.

- ▶ About the Program
- ▶ Faculty and Staff Directory
- ▶ Undergraduate Program
- ▶ Student FAQ
- ▶ Courses
- ▶ Events Calendar
- ▶ Program Contacts

American Studies

Rutgers University
Ruth Adams Building
 131 George Street
 New Brunswick, NJ
 08901-1414

(732) 932-9174
QUESTIONS?

PH: (732) 932-9174
FAX: (732) 932-1169

Hours:
 M-F 9:30 - 4:30

For questions or comments about the department or this site, contact
Helene Grynberg, Department Administrator

Last Updated: 12/01/2004

© 2003 Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey. All rights reserved
 All historical images from the Library of Congress, Prints and Photographs Division