The CEES program is an interdisciplinary program offered by the Department of Classical and Modern Languages and Literatures in conjunction with the Department of Political Science and the Department of History and in cooperation with the Center for Global Change and Governance. The CEES program provides training in the languages, literatures, cultures, history, politics, and societies of that part of Europe extending from Russia to Germany.

Students may major in one of two concentrations, cross-cultural and interdisciplinary:

1. languages, literatures, and cultures of central and eastern Europe (with two-thirds of courses taken in the Department of Classical and Modern Languages and Literatures) or
2. history, politics, and societies of central and eastern Europe (with two-thirds of courses taken in political science, history, and other social sciences)

Both major concentrations require 42 credits with at least 36 credits in courses numbered 200 and above. All students majoring in the CEES program must develop or demonstrate proficiency in a language of central and eastern Europe. The proficiency requirement may be fulfilled by completing 21:860:131,132 Intermediate Russian or 21&62: 470:131,132 Intermediate German, or by passing a proficiency examination developed or approved by the program in a language of central and eastern
